Guidance News:

Move on
When Ready
(MOWR)

What is Move on When Ready (Dual Enrollment)

Move on When Ready (MOWR) is simply this: Students take College classes at a college or university and earn Dual Credit. This means the student earns both college credit and high school credit for the same class.

In Georgia, taking dual enrollment classes happens through the Move On When Ready program. (MOWR) These terms (Dual Enrollment and Move on When Ready) are interchangeable and refer to the exact same thing.

MOWR is open to all 9th-12th grade students in the State of Georgia.

ECHS Guidance Link for MOWR

<https://sites.google.com/a/cowetaschools.net/echs-guidance/mowr>

Pros:

- Earn college credit while still in high school
- MOWR courses are FREE!
- Students can take as many classes as they want, and can take classes in the summers until graduation.

Cons:

- Students are given an adult level of responsibility
- This means that parents will not have access to a Parent Portal to monitor grades and attendance, and professors will not be calling home to inform parents if there is an issue.
- Transportation is not provided

MOWR Process Overview

1) Apply and be accepted to the Institution of your choice.

2) Complete MOWR Student Participation Agreement with ECHS Counselor. This will ensure the classes you are registering for with the college line up with your high school graduation requirements.

3) Register for classes at the College/University.

4) Turn in above form and a copy of your college schedule to ECHS Counselor

5) Complete MOWR online application through GAFutures.org (this is the funding application)

1) Apply and be accepted to the Institution of your choice

For a student to take a college course, the student must apply to and be accepted by that college or university. Every institution has its own admission requirements and application process.

Step One: Decide where you want to take Dual Enrollment classes.

Step Two: Find out what that school requires for admission and do those things (i.e. what admission test is required, when is the application deadline)

2) Complete MOWR Student Participation Agreement with ECHS Counselor

It's important that the classes students take at the college align with high school graduation requirements. This form helps counselors verify that classes are aligned and graduation requirements are met, either at the college or a combination of college and high school courses taken.

To know what academics your student needs to be on track to graduate: see the "Required Courses" that will be indicated in Student Portal for 2017-2018 Registration. This will be active in early February.

3) Register for classes at the College/University

Because MOWR students are treated like college students, they have to register for classes at the college. ECHS counselors can not register for them.

4) Turn in Student Participation Agreement and your college schedule to ECHS Counselor

Communication is key with MOWR! High School counselors do not know what you've registered to take if you don't tell them! This is vital in making sure classes align between college and high school. This must be repeated if you change your college schedule!

5) Complete MOWR online application through GAFutures

This is a very quick and easy application to complete, but it is VERY IMPORTANT because this is how your college classes get funded! In other words, if you don't complete this application, you will get a bill for your college classes.

When you complete the electronic application, your high school counselor will have access to approve your classes, and then it will go to the college for processing.
